

GENEVA MEETING RESUMES

Geneva (UPI) — The United States hopes the Soviet Union will return to the 17-nation disarmament conference with some change in its hitherto rigid stand, Western officials said Sunday.

The conference resumes Monday after a month's summer recess. The West, informed sources said, hopes Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin will return to the conference table more prepared to negotiate than before.

Both sides have completed explanation of their rival plans for general and complete disarmament in the opening phase of the conference. The United States now wants to get down to serious negotiation and with this end in view will press for the breaking up of the conference into small working groups to discuss specific disarmament aspects.

Idea Resisted

The Russians have hitherto resisted this idea, but the Western delegations hope they can still persuade Zorin that plenary sessions are mere forums for propaganda and that real negotiation can best be done in informal contacts.

As an illustration of this they will point to the 14-nation Laos conference now winding up here. Most of the real negotiation at this conference has been done in informal meetings between delegations, and plenary sessions have become less and less frequent.

Western delegates feel the Russians may bring some new proposal with them designed to make a propaganda splash at the opening session. But it will most likely not bring about any major change in the Soviet position on big issues, they said.

What the Russian move will be was not clear. Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev gave no clue when he spoke on disarmament at the Moscow "World Congress on Peace and Disarmament" last week. But Western sources said he could hardly be expected to tip his hand, and the Western delegations at the conference are therefore waiting for a Russian move with keen interest.

Western conference members are the United States, Britain, Canada and Italy. The communist side is represented by the Soviet Union, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and Romania, and the conference is rounded out by 8 neutral nations — Brazil, Burma, Ethiopia, India, Nigeria, Mexico, Sweden and the United Arab Republic.

Omahan Dies Of Gunshot Wounds

Omaha (AP) — Theodore Robinson, 39, of Omaha, died in a hospital Sunday night of gunshot wounds suffered a short time earlier in a shooting affray on Omaha's Near North Side.

Police took a man they identified as Fred Hancock of Omaha into custody. Police said he fired 5 times with a .38-caliber revolver during an argument with Robinson.

DANA DEEDS... Will know the land.

Peace Corps Will Take Lincolnite To Colombia

By ROGER WAIT
Star Staff Writer

Fresh out of college, a Lincolnite who has spent several years in Colombia has been picked to go back there in the Peace Corps.

Twenty-two-year-old Dana A. Deeds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Deeds of 1 Trenridge Road left Sunday to start training.

Just last month, Deeds was graduated from Cornell University with a bachelor of arts in history and government. He specialized in United States diplomatic history and took 9 hours of Latin American studies.

A down-to-earth idealist, young Deeds said that — if he completes training — he will be part of the 3rd Peace Corps contingent to go to Colombia.

The first one is working mainly with rural people of Colombia; the second is concentrating on public sanitation.

Urban Development

Deeds' team will be working on urban community development projects. The idea behind these is to help Colombians pull their less complex society up by its own bootstraps, he said.

Deeds will be one of 110 men and women entering the urban project. After 1½ months of training at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque, they will go to the Peace Corps center in Puerto Rico and finish up at the New York School for Social Work.

He is no stranger to Colombia. "I know what it's like down there," he observed.

For 10 years his father, a chemical engineering graduate of the University of Nebraska, was an executive with International Petroleum Co. in Colombia, and Dana went to school there 3 years and worked 3 summers there.

Fluent In Spanish

He speaks fluent Spanish; "I know all the swear words," he grinned. It has been said, he noted, that Bogotans speak the best Spanish in the New World, next to Castilian of Spain.

Ordinary people of Colombia have no crystallized anti-American feelings, he pointed out, and "they are very friendly on a personal level." Two things, Deeds explained, made him decide to apply for Peace Corps membership. One was that he will gain much, and the other was his own social consciousness.

"I think something can be done about things in the world," he said, "and I want to see if I can do my part of it."

Deeds attended Northeast High School one year, his 13-year-old brother, Tom, went to Robin Mickle Junior High, and his sister, Nancy Lee, a Cornell senior, is teaching English this summer in Honduras.

8 AMERICANS MISSING

... 2 Planes Down In So. Viet Nam

From News Wires
Saigon, South Viet Nam — Eight Americans were missing Monday following two air crashes in communist-infiltrated South Viet Nam.

A U.S. Air Force twin-engine C123 transport with 4 American crewmen aboard was missing and presumed crashed northeast of Saigon, U.S. authorities reported.

An armed convoy meanwhile pressed a search for 4 Americans missing after communist guerrilla gunfire downed a U.S. Army helicopter Sunday in mountainous jungle near the Laotian border.

No Trace

The transport plane left Saigon late Sunday on what was described a routine maintenance support mission. When it failed to reach its destination, the town of Ban Me Thout, 160 miles northeast of here, a check was made of all nearby landing strips but no trace of the plane was found.

A rescue force sent to look for the downed helicopter in the area about 276 miles north of here found one American Army officer about 10 miles from the crash scene. He was reported in good condition, the Army spokesman said.

2nd In 2 Days

A second H-21 helicopter escaped the communist attack and was able to return here safely. The incident was the second in as many days involving U.S. Army troops.

A band of Viet Cong guerrillas Saturday ambushed a convoy on a highway 40 miles north of here, killing a U.S. Army officer and 22 government paratroopers. The American was identified as Capt. Don J. York of Asheville, N.C.

The nature of the mission involving the helicopter shot down Sunday was not disclosed.

Status Unknown

"The status of the men aboard the helicopter is still unknown," the Army spokesman said.

Vietnamese Air Force planes were providing a protective cover for the search party sent to the area, but the poor weather hampered visibility.

Heavy infiltration of communist guerrillas from neighboring Laos has been in progress in the area of Sunday's crash for the past 5 weeks. Military intelligence men estimate about 3,000 communist rebels are now in the mountains.

The Army said York was killed in Saturday's attack when the jeep in which he was riding struck a mine. A battalion of communist guerrillas then raked the convoy with machine gun fire.

In addition to the 22 government troops killed, another 20 were reported wounded and 4 missing. The scene of the ambush was about 16 miles north of the spot where two American officers were killed June 16 in a similar ambush. Vietnamese troops have been unable to locate the communist battalion responsible for Saturday's ambush.

It was believed the Viet Cong guerrillas retreated into their jungle strongholds.

No bodies of communist soldiers were found at the scene. It appeared the Viet Cong troops either escaped without casualties or carried their dead and wounded with them.

Unions Warned Against Striking

... AT MISSILE PLANTS

Washington (UPI) — Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg warned Sunday the administration will ask Congress for laws to halt strikes at missile plants and sites if two unions carry out a threatened walkout one week from Monday.

Goldberg delivered the warning in appealing to the nation's missile makers and their employees' unions to come to "an amicable and peaceful settlement" in current contract negotiations.

"We cannot afford a strike in our missile manufacturing plants," said Goldberg. "The security of all of us depends on uninterrupted production."

Negotiations Go On
Contract negotiations have been under way for some time between the auto workers and machinists unions and the major missile manufacturers of the nation.

(The strike, if called, would set back completion of the Lincoln Atlas missile complex, scheduled to be completed in August or September.

(Approximately 600 of the 2,000 workers employed by General Dynamics and its subcontractors at the Lincoln complex are members of the International Association of Machinists.)

Strike Deadline
Little progress has been reported so far and the unions set the strike deadline July 23 if an agreement is not reached upon expiration of present contracts.

Involved in joint talks with the auto workers and machinists unions are 5 major missile and aircraft producers. Most of the plants are located on the West Coast.

The companies are strongly resisting demands for union shops. This was said to be the primary stumbling block in the talks, although wages and other matters also are at issue.

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., interviewing Goldberg in a weekly program for New York stations, raised the question of a possible missile industry strike. He said the situation "has us greatly worried in Congress." Goldberg said he shared Congress' concern.

Goldberg said, "If it becomes necessary, I would not hesitate to come to the Congress" to seek legislation to bar strikes at the missile plants. "In this area, we cannot tolerate an interruption of work," Goldberg asserted.

He said both union and management leaders had a responsibility not to make it necessary for the government to invoke such devices as the Taft-Hartley Law to deal with strikes or, once that authority is exhausted, to ask Congress for "further relief."

"It should not be necessary and I hope it won't be necessary," Goldberg said.

—DEPUTY MURDERED—

Nebraska Girl And Boy Friend Sought

Wakeeney, Kan. (AP) — A search for a pair of young hitchhikers charged with murder intensified as darkness cloaked this northwest Kansas area Sunday night.

"We're really going to work now, because they knew they didn't dare show their heads during daylight," said County Attorney W. R. Hainline.

The hitchhikers killed Al Claycamp, 37, deputy sheriff and city marshal of Wakeeney, and wounded Sheriff Chet McAtee, 55, Saturday night after the officers picked them up for questioning.

Murder warrants were issued Sunday naming Harry W. Bloomer, 24, of Indianapolis, Ind., and Shirley Nixon, 17, of Wilsonville, Neb.

Hainline said there was some question whether the man's name should be spelled Bloomer or Blummer, but it was made Bloomer on the warrant. That's the way it was spelled by the man's last employer, a custom combine operator in southwest Nebraska, the county attorney said.

200 Searching
About 200 men, 3 airplanes and some police dogs searched Saturday night and Sunday through the pasture and cropland area northeast of Wakeeney where the couple fled on foot.

"Much of that land is in the soil bank and there is lots of cover," said Hainline, who is directing the search.

At Wilsonville, about 80 miles north of Wakeeney near the Kansas-Nebraska border, members of the girl's family said she met the harvest worker July 7.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Nixon, have 11 children. Shirley was the oldest of the 9 living at home.

The father is employed by the Burlington railroad, and the mother works as a waitress in a tavern at Lebanon, Neb., 15 miles west of Wilsonville. Shirley quit high school two years ago and stayed at home, taking care of the younger children.

Left Thursday
A 13-year-old sister, Betty, quoted Shirley as saying Thursday that she was going to Norton, Kan., with Bloomer to get parts for a combine. Other children, however, told neighbors their sister was going to Kansas to get married.

Bill Hoover, city marshal at Wilsonville, said Shirley had run away from home several times and her parents had to go after her.

"I'd call her a little on the wild side," Hoover said.

Officers learned the girl's identity from a billfold, found in the sheriff's car after the shooting. It also contained her picture.

Questioned at the hospital, Sheriff McAtee said he and Claycamp picked the couple up on Interstate 70 about 10 miles east of town and began driving them toward Wakeeney. The couple was in the back seat and the two officers were in the front.

At a point about 5 miles east of town, McAtee said, the man drew a pistol and fired the shot that killed Claycamp.

The sheriff halted the car and began struggling with the assailant. He said that during the struggle the girl also pulled a pistol but he did not know which of the two shot him.

Ran Across Field
The couple bolted from the car and ran across a field.

The sheriff said he saw a highway patrol car coming down the highway and radioed he had been shot. The patrolman arrived seconds after the assailants fled, but remained at the scene to call for assistance.

The sheriff described the man as about 6 feet and weighing 160 pounds. He has sharp features and a long chin and was wearing a dark, long-sleeved shirt and blue jeans.

The sheriff said the girl, clad in shorts, was short and blonde-haired.

Dr. Francis J. Bice, the county coroner, said Claycamp died of a single bullet wound in the head. A .32-caliber bullet was removed from the neck of the wounded sheriff.

PINK FOR FEMALES, BLUE FOR MALES OR IS IT BLUE FOR FEMALES, PINK FOR MALES

London (AP) — There are two small but important rooms at the atomic energy establishment at Winfrith.

One room is for male members of the staff, the other for females. One room is pink, the other is blue.

Unfortunately, the pink room has a blue door.

And the blue room had a pink door. This led to some confusion.

As the employee magazine at the establishment tells it:

"Serious-faced senior officers converged on the conference room where, after hours of searching thought and discussion, 3 possible lines of action emerged — to change the doors over, to repaint them, or change the fittings inside the rooms."

Decisions were taken and appropriate orders were issued. But the lines of communication got crossed somewhere.

One morning last week some carpenters arrived, changed the doors and left.

Now the pink room had a pink door and the blue room had a blue door.

Everything was perfect — until after lunch. Then a gang of painters arrived and painted the pink door blue and the blue door pink.

The magazine concluded: "For all we know the committee is still sitting on the problem."

A LOOK AT NEBRASKA:

State Needs More Decision And Less Oratory

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska has a host of problems which have attracted far more in oratory than in decision.

Many have been ignored; others have received only a cursory glance followed, in many cases, by temporary or stop-gap action, or none at all.

Perhaps the easiest road "out" has been employed the most often — study the problem and make a report which, in turn, becomes the point of departure for the next committee assigned to study the same problem.

Now, to suggest that other states have always faced up squarely to the issues which confront them while Nebraska alone has lagged behind would not be fair — or accurate.

But, Nebraskans ought to be most concerned with

Nebraska. For it is what we do here — or fail to do — which will affect our future, and the dreams and hopes of a young state which claims to be hungry for status and success, but which may too often be satisfied with the security of anonymity.

3 Key Areas

Let us focus briefly on three key areas — matters of vital import — where inaction has held sway.

(1) The state's tax system is neither fair nor equal.

Facts will prove that statement to be true. But, it does raise two reasonable questions:

Is the taxing system of any state, or any government, totally fair and totally equal?

It's Sherbet Time!
Pineapple-Raspberry — 2 cool refreshing Meadow Gold sherbets in 1 package. Get plenty today! — Adv.

Could Nebraskans change their tax system in such a way so as to make it more fair and more equal?

Now prominent citizens are not agreed on whether a change should be made, or upon what the change ought to be. But, if the people and their representatives were certain that Nebraska's tax system is both fair and equal, would they always be studying it? Would the 1961 Legislature have authorized a new and

Brazil Wheat Leaders To Tour State

Four Brazilian wheat leaders will begin a 4-day Nebraska visit Monday as the Nebraska Wheat Commission's guests.
Commission Chief James Albracht said the Brazilians will tour the state east to west. The group includes:
Antonio Leoncio de Andrade Fontelles, director of the Wheat Expansion Service of Brazil's Agriculture Ministry; Dante Tezza, a leading wheat grower and dairyman; Hillson Gomes de Faria, a Bank of Brazil wheat consultant; and Dr. Edgar de Almeida Perez, president of a regional wheat cooperative.
Arriving in Omaha Monday morning, the 4 will visit Omaha, Lincoln and Scottsbluff areas through Thursday.
In Omaha, they will visit the Grain Exchange, flour mills and bakeries. In Lincoln they will see the State Capitol and terminal elevators. At Scottsbluff, they will tour harvest fields and the Scotts Bluff National Monument.

Giant Balloon Drops Cargo In Canada

Sunnyvale, Calif. (UPI)—A gigantic balloon the size of a football field jettisoned its cargo of two Rhesus monkeys and 4 hamsters in the wilds of Saskatchewan Province Sunday afternoon.
The balloon carried its payload of passengers in one of 5 capsules that were released electronically at 4:30 p.m. CST in order to make a recovery before nightfall.
The experiment, conducted by Ames Research Center of Sunnyvale, Calif., was designed to test cosmic radiation problems that may be encountered by moon-bound spacemen in the future.
Brad Evans, information officer for Ames, said the release was made about 45 miles north of Prince Albert in Saskatchewan in "very rough country."

By Glenn Kreuscher, Farm Editor

If you are planning a national-scope auction, Lincoln would be a good place to look for an auctioneer this weekend.

It will be like old home week and the National Auctioneers Convention lists a line-up of noted auctioneers for a 3-day meeting that starts Thursday at the Cornhusker Hotel.

Having worked closely in former years with many of these men, both as a ringman and as a national livestock association fieldman, I have great appreciation for what it takes to be an auctioneer.

Those that make a success of their profession are experts at public relations, in fact they excel at mind-reading because they seem to know just when to look right at a prospective bidder.

Right Sales Talk

They always have what sounds like the right sales talk ready to spur auction activity.

In selling merchandise, livestock, real estate or any of a thousand other items week in week out, they have an excellent sense of values.

We could fill pages with human interest stories about auctioneers — while their looks like a colorful and rewarding life, few folks realize what the men do to make sure the "Show Goes On."

I have known many of them to stand all afternoon and conduct a tense livestock auction, get in a car and drive more than half the night, and repeat the routine day after day through the fall, winter and spring sales season.

Your livestock auctioneer soon recognizes the value of good livestock and how—without paying any more for taxes or feed, or fixing any extra fence—the farmer or rancher can add a bonus to his operations by purchasing better sires.

Norfolk's Col. Corkle
One snowy, windy day in Goodland, Kan., I recall Col. Charles Corkle of Norfolk, national president of the Auctioneer Association, calling me over and asking:

"Did you see that lot 11 bull

State Farmers Paid $6.5 Million For Conservation

Approximately 28,900 Nebraska farmers earned $6,521,000 in conservation cost-share payments in 1961, according to Albert A. Francke, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service chairman.
In 1960, 18,005 farmers earned $5,333,000 in payments. Major conservation accomplishments established with cost-share assistance of the 1961 Agricultural Conservation Program include:

- New or improved permanent grass or legume cover, 64,035 acres.
- Increased acreages of grass or legumes in rotations, 232,748 acres.
- Contour strip cropping, 30,120 acres.
- Terraces to control runoff of water, 32,820,000 linear feet.
- Livestock water storage dams, 851.
- Erosion control dams, 605.
- Sod waterways, 201,150,000 square feet.
- Wells for livestock water, 1,217.
- Planting trees and shrubs 3,122 acres.
- Land leveling for irrigation, 30,813 acres.
- Stubble mulching 173,637 acres.
- Lining irrigation ditches with concrete or pipe, 30,406 rods.

that is going to sell this afternoon? Wouldn't he be just the bull for Ginsbach Hereford Ranch?"

A telephone call to the suggested purchaser, who had all the confidence in the world in Corkle's ability to select herd-sires, resulted in the go-ahead to make the purchase.

"When Col. Corkle said 'SOLD' that day, the bull went to the suggested purchaser at $2,000.

Real Results

But, the real results started two years later when for 8 years in a row Col. Corkle officiated at auctions where the sons of this herdsire averaged near $1,000 or more.

This is just one example of countless stories I could relate about auctioneers having the best interests of purchasers in mind.

And when it comes to remembering names, few professions can compete.

If you want to list one of the top secrets of the profession, it is the ability to seal the transaction with the bang of a gavel and the time old remark "SOLD" and then be able to call out the purchaser's name and address.

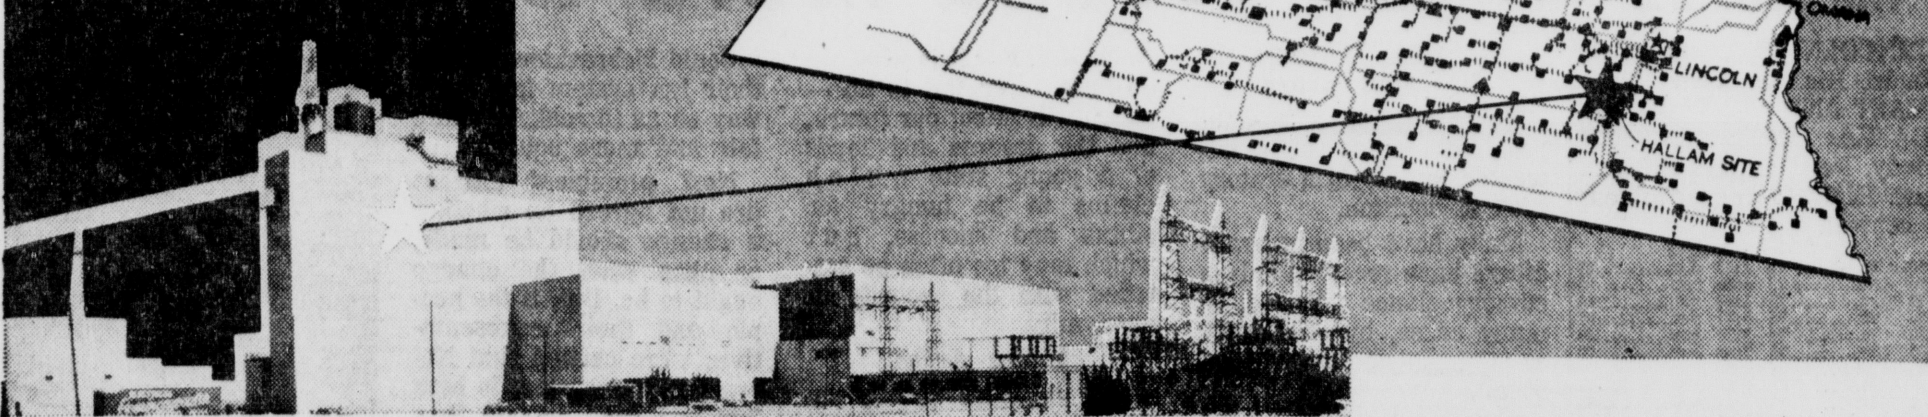

The men that can do this and their wives will be Nebraska visitors this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Majerus of Petersburg, who were hosts to the State Milking Shorthorn Association picnic Sunday, received a lot of comments on one cow in their herd.

The cow is 21½ years old; she has given birth to 21 calves, all single births, and all calves lived.

To show the longevity represented in this cow family, Majerus told visitors that the cow's dam was 25 years old when she was sent to market and a half-sister lived to be 22 years old.

NUCLEAR POWER BRINGS A NEW ERA TO NEBRASKA

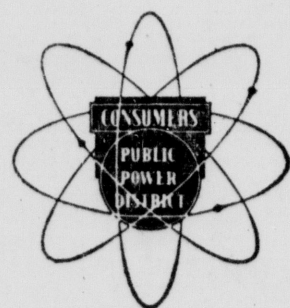

Before another year has passed, electric power produced from nuclear energy will be flowing into Consumers Public Power District's transmission lines (shown in solid black on the map).

The Lightened Yoke

By RICHARD O'REGAN

(Note: Editor William O. Dobler is on vacation. Today's column is by veteran newsman Richard O'Regan, Associated Press chief of bureau in Germany, who has recently completed a month-long tour to find out what's going on behind the Iron Curtain. In this first of five articles, he reports his impressions on the state of mind of East Europeans.)

BUDAPEST — Every night during the summer the open-air dance floors are crowded. You can't get a step in edgeways when the bands play old favorites like "Tea For Two" and "Ramona." At quiet tables, young couples hold hands. In the city outskirts and in the villages, the sparsely furnished, simple restaurants are full. The young men gather on the street, talk, wait, make passes at the peasant girls, go to bed and get up again.

Life is going on behind the Iron Curtain just like anywhere else. There is no feeling of massive ferment or unrest.

No Major Unrest

Grumbling, certainly. Many people dissatisfied, yes. But also many people believing they are far better off than they used to be. Many people convinced they have more security, more social benefits, more education for their children, better housing. Many people with more food, some with less. People in the West often visualize Eastern Europe as boiling and ready to blow apart. Soldiers with tommyguns, secret police and a giant Communist Party machinery do prevent people from free expression of their will, but—"There was an American here recently and he asked me why I didn't escape during the revolution and why I don't get up and fight now," a Hungarian said. "I told him the truth," he went on. "I've got to lead my life. I have a family to support. Why should I get up and leave? Communism has done a lot for a lot of people. Many people live a lot better than they did 10 years ago. Besides, over the years, communism is bound to grant more and more freedom. It already has had to give way."

His attitude has its history. Through the centuries, most East European nations have been occupied by foreign troops or lived under alien ideas. It is an old story for Czechs, Slovaks, Hungarians, Romanians, Poles and Bulgarians. Most of the time they compromise, try to change the system a little and rise up only when oppression is intolerable.

The fact is that communist oppression in East Europe today is more tolerable than it used to be. The Hungarian revolution taught the communists a lesson. The terror of the Stalinist secret police has gone. Living conditions have improved remarkably since this correspondent visited East Europe nine years ago. But ever-present troops confirm that communism still keeps itself in power by force. There are more consumer goods in the shops. Some are exorbitantly expensive, others relatively cheap. There are more private cars and motorcycles, some private houses abuilding. You can own a bit of land, perhaps a sailboat. There are new apartment houses, often gray, monotonous in design and jerry-built, but they are there. There are new factories and full employment, even if wages are low.

A new class of Communist Party leaders, technicians and officials have a vested interest in the system. Now they are mainly trying to solve communism's economic difficulties and secure more material benefits for themselves. Later they may want more personal freedoms.

Yugoslav workers are better off than they ever were. Romanian and Hungarian peasants who knew extreme poverty and lived under semi-feudalism now have a chance at city life.

Some people may be resentful and in passive resistance—farmers deprived of their lands, businessmen with confiscated property, former industrialists now eking out a living and political prisoners released from jail.

There are queues for food in Czechoslovakia, frequent shortages of items like razor blades and toothbrushes, and almost everywhere a knowledge that things are better in Western Europe.

"But," said a high Western diplomat, "communism is beginning to satisfy people's elemental needs. They are trapped and can do nothing to change the system. However, it would be a mistake to overlook the progress which has been made or to imagine major violence brewing." Despite the efforts to brighten existence, however, life remains a dreary, monotonous, overcrowded existence by Western standards. The housing shortage is why people fill the restaurants and dance halls. There are few other ways of expressing individual taste or fantasy. Take housing. A model is selected by city planners for an apartment building. It is built a score of times. In Czechoslovakia and Hungary it can look gray and unfinished. In Romania, there is more color in the architecture. But furniture and curtains are available only in limited selection, and everybody has the same. There are neon lights in the cities but to Western eyes, they lack sparkle and imagination. They advertise simple "Meat" (even if there is none), "Books", "Photo Equipment", "Clothes", "Hotel."

Old buildings are frequently unrepaired, everywhere there is a shortage of paint and the streets of many towns are littered with discarded tires, barrels and construction material nobody has carted away. The "People's Paradise" still is a long way off.

Mixed Blessing

Congress has passed a law, now signed by the President, that may greatly affect the future of television.

The law directs the Federal Communication Commission to make revisions in present regulations. More specifically, it provides that future television sets sold in interstate commerce must have provision for tuning in ultra high frequency as well as very high frequency.

Currently we are limping along with very high frequency which offers channels 2 to 13 inclusive. Ultra high frequency offers much more variety. It operates on channels 14 to 83 inclusive. In short, when both frequencies are accommodated a viewer could have a maximum selection of 82 channels.

On the bad side of this new law are the facts that it will tend to make all of the 55 million existing television sets in the nation obsolete, that, plus an increase in cost of between $20 and $30 a set to produce one receiving on all channels. There may be added charges for improved antennas.

This one stroke of political enterprise should cure anything that might be wrong with national business, calling for $1.5 billion approximately to modernize the television industry.

But that cloud is not as dark as might seem. Having so many channels and so much variety assures the average viewer that he will miss far more bad programs on a given evening than he will have to endure. And then there is always the hopeful prospect that by the time a viewer has riffled through 82 channels the evening will be over and he will be saved from all bad shows.

Out In Left Field

Two members of the Texas State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee admitted to Senate investigators that they had paid little if any attention to the cotton allotment deals of Billy Sol Estes and had done nothing about them. Apparently he could have walked off with the office safe as far as they were concerned.

ASC state committee members are not government bureaucrats. They are civilian appointees placed in charge of farm program operations to heighten the democratic ingredient and exercise the maximum practical local control. It is a shocking commentary that two such important appointees acted so irresponsibly. Carved in the Nebraska capitol is something to the effect that the welfare of the states is the vigilance of the people. It is a good thought and should be exported to Texas.

Nebraska could also export its careful body of grain law to Texas, which, at last report, had none and desired none because such laws tend to interfere with individual resourcefulness.

However one may wish to belabor the secretary of agriculture over Billy Sol Estes it is true that with reasonably attentive ASC committeemen and a rational body of law he would never have got to first base.

As it is, one of the main lessons to be derived from the Estes matter is that home control is by no means the virtue it is claimed to be.

Quite Confusing

The stock market has shown more active trading at somewhat better prices since the Federal Reserve Board directed a reduction in margin requirements. How long the shot in the arm will last is speculative. It is also speculative why the FRB reduced margins at this time.

WASHINGTON — It's now estimated that the doctors' lobby organized by the American Medical Association has spent $7,000,000 to defeat medical care for the elderly. Here is how some of the money has been spent:

One of the votes on the crucial Ways and Means Committee now holding up medical care in the House is that of Rep. Clark Thompson, D., Tex., whom the White House had counted on to vote for the elderly. Congressman Thompson is a pleasant and agreeable person, who married into the Moody family, one of the wealthiest in Texas, and entertains lavishly at his palatial residence on embassy row between the British embassy and the residence of the Apostolic Delegate.

But suddenly Congressman Thompson, contrary to the expectation of the White House, lined up with the doctors and against medical care. When asked by this column whether he had received any financial support from the medical profession, Thompson replied: "I didn't get a single nickel from the doctors."

This, however, is not what the doctors say.

When my associate, Jack Anderson, telephoned the "American Medicine For Political Action Committee," otherwise known as AMPAC, which operates the doctors' lobby, he was told that Dr. Max E. Johnson of San Antonio was in charge of the Texas drive to "stimulate doctors to take part in politics."

Dr. Johnson, reached by telephone, denied that the doctors of Texas were trying to influence Congressman Thompson, but added:

American Women Worth Cool Collective $95 Billion

NEW YORK—If you are an adult, and you have a frequent craving for sweets and ice cream—tsk. The chances are you feel unloved. You're trying to recapture the past when sweets were your reward for good behavior.

If you avoid eating shelled food, like lobster and shrimp—oh-oh. The preference for soft, easy-to-handle foods indicates a psychological clinging to childhood.

How about midnight snacks. Like them? You're insecure. You're turning to food for reassurance, since Mommy isn't there to cuddle you.

And are you a finicky eater? That means you rebelled against your parents as a child, and you never quite got over it.

All these psychological assumptions, and more, are summarized in a medical magazine. The author prefers to remain anonymous (sounds like a midnight snack type), but he leaves the distinct impression that you can judge your fellow man's psychiatric status by what, how much and how he eats.

Psychologically unbalanced personalities have more adventurous food tastes than troubled ones. I'm glad, I like pig's feet, parsnips and snails.

How balanced can you get?

THEOPHRASTUS

Profiles In Science

Theophrastus, one of the world's first writers on plant life, was master of the Lyceum, founded by Aristotle and one of the most famous schools in history. He was head of the school from 322 B.C., the year Aristotle died, to 288 B.C., the year of his own death.

Theophrastus was Aristotle's favorite pupil as well as his heir; and although he had been described as lacking his master's capacity for original and imaginative thought, he made up for it by his diligence and careful observation of nature.

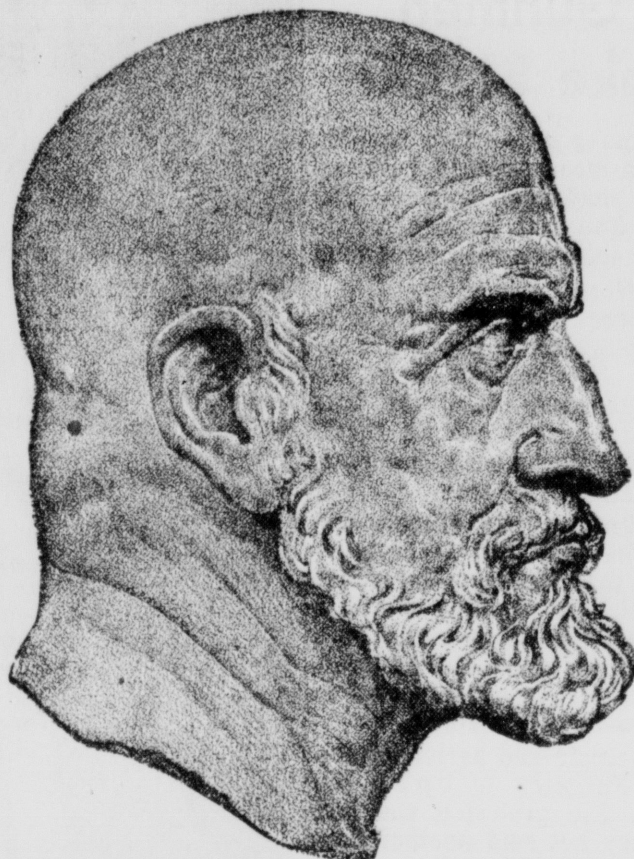

He was born on the island of Lesbos in 370 B.C. According to the legend, his true name was Tyrtamus, but he owed even his name to Aristotle, who nicknamed him Theophrastus because of his "god-like speech."

Theophrastus first attended school in Lesbos and then went to Athens to study under Plato. Thus he followed the same educational path taken by Aristotle before him.

He probably spent several years in Stagira, Aristotle's birthplace, where the young prince, who was to become Alexander the Great, was Aristotle's pupil. Theophrastus, like Callisthenes, may have been Alexander's fellow student.

In his will, Aristotle made Theophrastus guardian of his children and left him his library and the originals of his works. He appointed Theophrastus his successor, although Eudemus of Rhodes also had a right to expect that position.

Aristotle tactfully and delicately indicated he preferred Theophrastus to be head of the Lyceum by saying that while the wines of Rhodes and Lesbos were both good, that of Lesbos was sweeter.

Theophrastus headed the school for almost 35 years. The Lyceum's principal studies were logic, physics, biology, psychology, ethics, politics and rhetoric. To these Theophrastus added botany, writing two texts—"On the History of Plants" and "The Cause of Plants"—both of which were among the most important contributions to botany until relatively modern times.

Theophrastus was familiar with the plants of Greece and also had learned much about the plants of the rest of the world—the world overrun by Alexander's armies.

Men skilled in describing plants and in collecting specimens and seeds accompanied Alexander on his expeditions. Their knowledge was turned over to Theophrastus, and the specimens may have included plants from which many medicines still considered effective are made, since Alexander and his generals were chiefly interested in plants with medicinal value.

Theophrastus' writings on botany were standard botanical texts until the 16th century, when the first "herbals" appeared with their beautiful illustrations and recipes for poultices and salves, potions and simples.

PIERRE J. HUSS

Soviets Courting Afro-Asian Bloc

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. —In the early evening of June 28, the annual UN Assembly finally rang down the curtain on its longest session in history. It started in September, and was plunged immediately into shocked grief by the plane crash death of Dag Hammarskjold. The 104th session then knuckled down to 155 days of debate on 97 items on its agenda, although it was twice interrupted by a recess.

All in all, it was a stormy session, but far less so than that of its 1960 predecessor noted in history books as the assembly of shoe-pounding and barroom behavior by ill-tempered and boorish Nikita Khrushchev.

The sixteenth session shifted emphasis entirely from an overall Western complexion of problems covering the same cold war ground to one heavily influenced if not entirely dominated by the black delegates of Africa in conjunction with the brown men from Asia, with both sometimes used as a catspaw by the Soviet Union and its satellites. The final outcome could have been prophesied largely in advance. Any issue touching the so-called "colonial" question was taken over lock, stock and barrel by the Afro-Asians and the wishes of that considerable combination were rammed through for better or for worse.

Thus, it was made plain in a resolution adopted by heavy majority early in the session that any jungle or backward nation anywhere on earth must be granted independence regardless of the consequences. This action went in to the books despite the bloodshed and civil war which exploded in the Congo following independence before the former Belgian colony was prepared to cope with it: the same happened when, later, the session rushed through the independence of Ruanda-Urundi in the face of acknowledgment by the Africans themselves that those black people were totally unready to govern themselves.

Earlier, the Afro-Asian delegates had looked the other way when Prime Minister Nehru invaded the Portuguese colony of Goa on the pretext of liberating it from colonial rule. Nor did they get excited over Indonesian Dictator Sukarno's invasion of New Guinea.

On the more constructive side, except for such leftist members as Ghana, Nasser's UAR, and Mali, the powerful Afro-Asian group became increasingly wary of Soviet courtship and accepted Soviet votes on their side without voicing thanks or returning favors in kind. On the other hand, neither did any of the Afro-Asians go out of their way to condemn the Soviet Union for ruling over the greatest slave empire in world history, or for resuming nuclear tests in the atmosphere after stalling U.S. and British proposals in Geneva for a test-ban agreement.

The Afro-Asian bloc stood firm against Soviet efforts throughout the early part of the assembly session to force a "troika" upon UN after Hammarskjold's death, and joined the Western Big Three in electing Burmese Ambassador U Thant to the post of secretary general. Before the June 28 adjournment, the Afro-Asians gave every indication that they will solidly support his election to the UN post for a full five-year term beginning next April.

The Soviet Union is striving to maneuver Thant into making commitments to them by threatening communist opposition to him in the assembly and security Council next fall. But the wily Burmese diplomat knows that as long as he has the combined support of the allied countries and Afro-Asian group, Moscow will hardly risk disaster in Africa and particularly Asia by vetoing his election. Two years ago the world on the whole rallied energetically behind UN when Khrushchev attempted to bully the assembly into firing Hammarskjold.

The 1961 assembly aroused sharp controversy in the U.S. and Europe, and severe parliamentary opposition developed, when it ordered UN troops in the Congo to restore law and order by force of arms. Lobbyists and paid mercenaries gave the public everywhere a picture of Katanga heroes fighting with backs to the wall against a UN army supported by what they propagandized as leftist leaders. But UN put an end to the civil war between Katanga and the central government of Leopoldville, and is currently putting on new pressure to compel an agreement for unified control between President Moise Tshombe of Katanga and Premier Cyrille Adoula of Leopoldville.

What riled the American Congress more than anything else was the barefaced refusal of the Soviet bloc to pay a single penny toward the cost of the UN operation in the Congo. Some fuel was added when UN found itself in dire financial straits to the tune of $150,000,000. U Thant floated a loan for $200 million, half of which the U.S. was asked to subscribe. That bill is still before Congress.

President De Gaulle of France, angered over Afro-Asian insistence on freedom for Algeria, turned his back on the assembly and blasted it at every opportunity.

In the face of all this muscle flexing by the Afro-Asians, the question was bound to arise in Western minds as to where UN is heading under an influence which, in alliance with the Soviet bloc, can override the Western Big Three at will. In the U.S., much has been said recently on amending the UN charter to install what is called "weighed" voting.

This would mean giving the countries with the largest population a proportionate number of votes and, perhaps, combining into a single vote those countries with sparsely populated regions. But it is pointed out at UN that this system would give India, the Soviet Union, and any combination of African states the controlling votes in UN against the U.S., Britain and France.

Compromise Medicare Bill
Backers See Showdown Win

... SENATE VOTES TUESDAY ON MOTION

Washington (UPI) — Main sponsors of the Senate's compromise medicare bill Sunday predicted victory in a showdown test Tuesday. They also said public opinion might force a reluctant House to follow suit.
Sens. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., and Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., the principal architects of the bipartisan plan, made a joint plea for passage of the measure in a television program for New York stations.
The Senate vote Tuesday will come on a motion to table — and thus kill — the compromise health care program. Anderson said he was confident that the tabling motion would fail but cautioned fellow senators that those who do vote to kill the bill would not be able to claim they were not voting on the merits of the bill itself.
Less Optimistic
Democratic leaders, less optimistic than formerly, sent a call for help Saturday to former Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Abraham A. Ribicoff, who Saturday night won the Connecticut Democratic convention's nomination for U.S. senator. Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., wired Ribicoff urging the former cabinet official to be here Monday and Tuesday to help in the fight.
Javits said he and Anderson were "looking forward optimistically" to the voting with the expectations that the Senate would pass the "greatly improved bill."
Anderson observed, however, that a motion to table a bill "is an ingenious thing" because "it permits a person to vote to kill something and then say 'I never voted on that, I voted on a parliamentary procedure.'"

Must Recognize
Anderson said the public must recognize that "this is not a parliamentary procedure; this is a question of life and death for a bill that gives adequate care to the aged."
Javits said the only hope for House action on medicare rested in Senate passage "and I think it's extremely important that people keep their eyes clearly on the performance of every senator in this respect."
He said "if the bill passes the Senate and the people will take that as their signal to move into this situation strongly, they will insist that the House must pass it too, and we'll get a law in this session of Congress."
Show House Members
Anderson also said Senate approval would show balking House members that "the public wants this kind of a bill."

The two senators attacked arguments against the bill by medical groups, primarily the American Medical Association.
"They are seeing hobgoblins as to what this might amount to someday if it's continued to expand and expand and expand," Javits said. "I cannot see anything in this bill whatever which represents any compromise of the private relation between doctor and patient."
Said Anderson: "I'm probably alive today because of fine doctors. If I thought this was going to hurt the medical profession, I would not be joining with you in sponsoring it. It will not. It will help."

Secret Meeting To Be Held On Algeria's Bitter Quarrel
Algiers (P) — The loyal commander of Wilaya (Zone) 3 of the Nationalist guerrilla army conferred in Algiers Sunday with the government of Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda on how to meet the growing challenge of leftist dissidents installed in western Algeria.
The commander, Col. Mohamed Ould Hadj, is the kingpin of the government forces. He commands some 20,000 men in the Kabylie Mountains east of Algiers. Ben Khedda's only sure stronghold outside the capital.
A government spokesman said Hadji will join top officers of the other 5 zones in a secret "Wilaya Council" to be held somewhere in the Atlas Mountains south of Blida this week.
Peaceful Solution
The council is being convened to find a peaceful solution to the bitter quarrel between the Ben Khedda government and the dissident group around Deputy Premier Ahmed Ben Bella.
The Wilaya Council includes none of the quarrelling civilian leaders, nor the general army which is at the root of the quarrel.
The general staff, summarily dissolved by Ben Khedda on the eve of independence for allegedly plotting a "military dictatorship," continues to run the main army in defiance of the government.
Western Half
It controls the western half of the 12-day-old nation, and regards Ben Bella, installed at headquarters at Tlemcen near the Moroccan border, as the rightful head of government.
The Wilaya Council has no legal power to make a decision on which of the rival leaders should take control. Nor is it certain that the two sides would accept the council's recommendations.
Information Minister M'Hammed Yazid told newsmen the government will accept the guerrilla leaders' plan for a way out of the deadlock, whatever it may be. But no similar assurance has come from Ben Bella or the dissident general staff colonels.

2 Americans On Board Missing Plane In Laos
Vientiane, Laos (P) — A light twin-engine plane with two Americans aboard has been missing since Saturday on a flight from Vientiane to Paksane, 65 miles east of here.
The plane's owners, Bird and Sons Inc., said Sunday the plane carried an American pilot and a member of the U.S. military assistance advisory group for Laos. Names were withheld.
A search by planes and helicopters was launched when the plane failed to arrive at Paksane on schedule. The search was resumed Sunday morning but rain and low ceiling hampered operations. The plane was under contract to the advisory group.

Wanted: Wife With Teeth
Stockholm, Sweden (UPI) — An American Sunday advertised for a Swedish wife with beautiful teeth — "either natural or false."
The following ad from an unidentified American living in Rodovre, a suburb of Copenhagen, Denmark, appeared in the daily newspaper Dagens Nyheter.
"My first wife was German, the second was Danish. The 3rd wife must be a Swedish girl. The Swedish language is like music to my ears. I suggest she should be between 35 and 55. She must have no children, wear no glasses, have beautiful teeth, either natural or false. Her eyes must be either blue, gray, or green, and she must be at least as beautiful as my late Danish wife who was only an average beauty.
"Her must not have colored (dyed) or gray hair. Culture or sex appeal or the two qualities together will be appreciated. A woman who dresses with common sense in winter will have my preference.
"and as soon as I have rented a villa, she must be willing to follow me to Los Angeles and after to Quebec. When I have plenty of money, I travel by passenger ship in the first class; when not, in the second class. And then by train, either first or second class. And naturally the sleeping car. I like good living. I am from North America (white) 55 years old, not beautiful but not ugly, weight 165 pounds, plenty of dark brown hair, green eyes, fair complexion. I wear no glasses. No children. Not a slave of tobacco, beer, radio or television. I claim to be the best-dressed man in Rodovre. Answer in English, French, German or Swedish to number "America 7314."

irate Brother Leaves House, But Unhappily
Portsmouth, England (P) — Walter Link became angry with his sister when she asked him to leave her house after a quarrel. So he:
Kicked in the television set, smashed the radio, ripped the headboard off a bed, broke a glass door panel, damaged the refrigerator, wrecked the washing machine, wrenched two legs off a table, smashed the glass door of a China cabinet and kicked in the front door.
The 24-year-old laborer pleaded guilty to causing $340 worth of damage before examining magistrate. The court postponed sentence pending probation reports when Link told the judge: "I am sorry."

Labor Warned: 'Fear Kennedy Steel Action'

A University of Nebraska professor Sunday warned Nebraska labor union leaders that they should "perhaps be fearful" of President Kennedy's action in the recent steel price dispute.
"While most of you applauded President Kennedy's actions to hold down steel prices," Dr. Richard M. Bourne noted, "we should perhaps be fearful of this action."
"Direct government action on prices can only lead to regulation of wages, hours and working conditions."
Bourne is a professor of business organization and management.
He spoke to closing sessions of the 3-day Institute for Labor Union Leaders held at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.
Proposals Discussed
Bourne discussed a number of proposals which have been broached recently in labor-management legislation.
Among them, he said, are new powers of government seizure, public representation in bargaining negotiations, a ban on industry-wide bargain-

Murder, Rape Charges Filed In Fatal Leap
Wilkes-Barre, Pa. (UPI) — A 20-year-old Marine, absent without leave from Camp LeJeune, N.C., was charged with murder Sunday in the fatal plunge over a cliff of Jean Volukonis, 14, following a drinking party.
The suspect, William Lewis of West Nanticoke, Pa., also was charged with raping a 18-year-old girl at the party Friday night in a private home. Police said the Volukonis girl was fleeing from his advances when the fatal plunge occurred.
Lewis will be arraigned before Alderman Francis Murphy on Monday. Police said he has not admitted the crime.
Investigators said that following the rape of the older girl, Lewis ran from the house with another youth and Miss Volukonis and Lewis then tried to molest the pretty schoolgirl.
Authorities said Jean broke away from Lewis, ran through a wooded area and fell over the edge of a 50-foot cliff into the brush beside Lake Silkworth Road. It was there two small boys found her body Saturday.

Miesbach, Germany (P) — Johann Dremel, 12-year-old altar boy, had the job every Sunday of ringing the bell for early mass at the Roman Catholic Chapel in this Alpine village.
Sunday morning, the bell tolled, then stopped suddenly. Villagers climbed to the bell tower to see what had happened. They found Johann dead.
Police said he pulled so hard on the bell cord that it

The public, he said, has "a general fear of power." And in the labor field, he declared, a public image of James Hoffa and the power of the Teamsters Union has not helped.
As for the future, Bourne predicted that "further government regulation and participation can be expected."
Earlier, Clerk of the Legislature Hugo Srb explained the legislative process in Nebraska's Unicameral to the labor audience.

First Assignment With FDA Passed By Woman Doctor

... PREVENTED 'AN AMERICAN TRAGEDY'

Washington (UPI) — A woman doctor, in her very first assignment for the government, was reported Sunday to have prevented "an American tragedy" — the birth of perhaps thousands of babies with missing arms and legs.

She is Dr. Frances Oldham Kelsey, a 47-year-old specialist on drugs who stood on her convictions through a flood of criticism and prevented the marketing of a sleeping pill later linked to grotesque deformities in the newborn.

Her story, and the details of a medical investigation that eventually proved her suspicions well founded, were related Sunday by the Washington Post. She and officials of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), for whom she works, confirmed the facts.

"The American public owes her a vote of thanks," said Assistant FDA Commissioner Winton B. Rankin.

Involves Drug

This medical mystery story involves a drug bearing the chemical name Thalidomide, and a rare type of birth defect known as Phocomelia. Here is how it unfolded:

Thalidomide was developed by a West German firm 8 years ago, and discarded because it showed no effect on test animals. Another German firm developed it in 1958 and found that it promised to be the best sleep-inducer ever — no hangover, no danger in overdosage.

Sales boomed in West Germany, first over the counter, then by prescription, under the trade name Contergan. Its use spread, and it was sold in Britain as Distaval, in Portugal as Softenon, in Canada as Talimol.

Clearance Requested

In September 1960, the William S. Merrell Co. of Cincinnati, requested FDA clearance to market the compound in the United States.

Dr. Kelsey had just joined the team of investigators who enforce the Food and Drug Act. As chance would have it, the Thalidomide application became her first case.

Accompanying the application were data claiming the drug to be ultra safe. But Dr. Kelsey was not convinced. She repeatedly refused to okay the drug, and her superiors backed her up.

Held Her Ground

There were insinuations, she said, that she was a hair-splitter, an unreasonable bureaucrat — even that she was stupid. She held her ground.

Came 1961, and in West Germany a particularly poignant problem was vexing the medical profession. Phocomelia, so rare that some medical dictionaries don't even list it, had broken out.

The Post said that Dr. Helen B. Taussig, professor of pediatrics at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine in Baltimore, went to Germany to help with the detective work. An 86-year-old specialist in human malformities told her that in his life he had "seen as many individuals with two heads as he had with Phocomelia," the Post related. Yet here it was becoming all too common.

Grow From Stub

Ordinarily, a victim of Phocomelia is missing one arm, and small rudimentary fingers ("like the flippers of a seal," according to Dr. Taussig) grow from the stub. But the cases in Germany were worse. Some infants were missing both arms, some both legs, others 3 limbs. A few had no members at all.

All sorts of possible causes, from heredity to radioactive fallout, were checked out and discarded as unlikely.

Breakthrough Came

The breakthrough came in November, 1961. Dr. Widukind Lenz, a Hamburg pediatrician, conducted a study which showed that about 20% of the mothers of deformed infants who came to his clinic had taken Thalidomide. He questioned the women again and the rate went up to 50%.

It developed that the drug was dangerous to the unborn when taken within 20 to 40 days after conception — a period when women may not yet know they are pregnant. Dr. Lenz believes that during this period, the chances are at least two in five that the baby will be affected.

Thalidomide was taken off the market in Germany and elsewhere. But it is estimated that by the end of August the total deformed children born in West Germany will be between 3,500 and 6,000. One of 3 is expected to die.

King Asks For Meeting With Albany City Commissioners

Atlanta (UPI) — Negro integration leader Martin Luther King said here Sunday that racial demonstrations will resume in Albany, Ga., this week unless Negro demands are met.

Leaders of the integrationist Albany movement have requested a meeting with the Albany City Commission early in the week. "If the city commission will not meet with us we will have no alternative but to resort to non-violent direct action," King said.

King said several national civil rights groups have entered the Albany fight with offers of support.

He listed the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) and the Gandhi Society.

King said attorneys from the Gandhi Society and the ACLU were conferring with Albany Negro attorneys to determine which areas of legal action would be most effective.

King and the Rev. Ralph Abernathy returned to Atlanta from Albany for one day to fill the pulpits of their churches and, as Abernathy said, to communicate direct-

When a 19-year-old Indonesian girl embarked on a nursing career in a small Borneo hospital in 1952, little did she realize that in less than 10 years she would become one of her country's foremost leaders in public health.

Visiting in Lincoln with a friend, Mrs. E. M. Forsyth, is Miss Siti K. Atmodiwirjo, director of public health nursing for Indonesia, who recalls fondly her sky-rocketing career.

"I began just out of school in 1952 in a hospital in Borneo with 125 beds," said Miss Atmodiwirjo, "but by December of that year I was transferred to the capital of South Borneo, where I became coordinator for midwives and in charge of 22 health centers."

Studies Abroad

The Indonesian government had big plans for her, though, and did not let Miss Atmodiwirjo's work go unrecognized. In 1953, she was called back to Jakarta to prepare for studies abroad, later going to New Zealand and Singapore to broaden her education.

In April 1955, she returned to Jakarta and was appointed a public health nursing school instructor in Bandung.

In less than 8 months, she was transferred to Sumatra, taking charge of two provinces. At the age of 22, she was now setting up health centers for a population of 4½ million.

123 Health Centers

When she was called back to Jakarta again in 1960 to become public health nursing director for the entire country, Miss Atmodiwirjo had set up 123 health centers in the provinces where she had been working.

She then went to Canada in October 1961, enrolling in an advanced course in public health nursing administration and supervision at the University of Toronto.

This summer, completing her course, she decided to visit Mrs. Forsyth, whom she had met on a plane early in her career, before returning to her home country.

Together, she and Mrs. Forsyth have visited Lincoln hospitals and public health centers and observed the progress made by public health workers in eastern Nebraska.

Green, Clean City

"I like Lincoln very much," said Miss Atmodiwirjo smilingly. "It is so peaceful, quiet, green, and clean."

She also praised America's strawberries, peaches and many other fruits not obtainable in Indonesia, but which she is sampling in plentiful amounts while in Lincoln.

What lies ahead for this dedicated woman as she serves her 16-year-old country? Miss Atmodiwirjo hopes to enter Harvard's School of Public Health for further training.

But meanwhile she will return to Jakarta, taking with her a most prized possession and reminder of her visit to the United States — an electric toaster.

Toasters are practically non-existent in Indonesia.

Iowa Woman To Head 9th District Cooties' Auxiliary

Mrs. Anna May Santana of Council Bluffs, Iowa, was elected Sunday as the 1962-63 president of the 9th District Military Order of Cooties' Auxiliary, meeting in Lincoln for the 15th annual Cootie Pow Wow.

Mrs. Blanche Jensen of Topeka, Kan., was chosen senior vice-president and Mrs. Gladys Willit of Kansas City, Mo., junior vice-president.

Elected treasurer was Mrs. Gladys Edge of St. Joseph, Mo. Mrs. Patricia Anderson of Council Bluffs, Iowa, is the new 9th district secretary.

Other 1962-63 officers are: chaplain, Mrs. Evelyn Nigro of Omaha; district conductress, Mrs. Pauline Smith of Des Moines, Iowa, and guard woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Quisenberry of Kansas City, Kan.

Mrs. Helen Avis, national supreme chief of staff for the auxiliary, and Mrs. Shirley McCullough of Kansas City, Mo., national supreme treasurer, were present for installation ceremonies following the election.

The Cooties are an honor degree of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations. Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters.

comprehensive study, now underway, if we believed our system to be best as it is?

By our insistence on studying taxation, we admit that it can be improved. By our inaction to changing it, we betray an inability to act.

Since 1867

The state has relied on the property tax as its basic tax structure since 1867. It is the only state of the 50 which has no form of either a general sales tax or income tax.

(2) The state's public school system carries the burden of the most school districts of any state, and its teachers rank low nationally in wages and standards.

By largely voluntary action, Nebraska has cut its 7,200 school districts to 3,272. But the great number of districts still boost the average cost of educating a child and exaggerate the cost differential throughout the state.

In turn, the great number of districts reduce the total amount of capital available for teacher salaries and school improvements. The cycle then produces low standards which increase the ease of filling a low-salaried teaching position.

43rd In Salaries

As a result, Nebraska ranks 43rd in teacher salaries and 49th in state financial support despite the fact that it can show the 18th highest income per pupil enrolled.

This is not intended to be an indictment of every small school or its teachers. The best teacher in Nebraska may not have attended college and he (or she) may teach at a sub-standard salary. But it is fair to assume that — all things being equal — the teacher who has accumulated the most knowledge in his field has the most wisdom to offer his students.

In restricting, the state is a generation behind.

And it is the only state in the union with no general state aid to education.

(3) The state's economy — and thus its growth — is too dependent on agriculture for its own good.

The obvious answer to this problem is industrial growth, a balanced and secure economy with the accompanying virtues of a bigger business payroll, investment and expansion and increased employment opportunities.

Trying Industrialization

And so the state has turned its fuller attentions recently to industrialization.

A special session of the Legislature in 1960 paved the way by submitting to the people a constitutional amendment to permit local and county government units to issue revenue bonds to finance new plants for private industry.

The people approved, and the 1961 Legislature responded with an act implementing the amendment.

But most of the effort in the past — and even today — has been made at the local level.

Columbus has been the primary example of the past decade: Cozad is the newest success story.

Moving an industrialization program into full gear ought to be a concern of all the state.

Other Problems

And yet, attraction of industry to Nebraska — and the resultant stimulation of its economy — depends largely on the solution to other problems.

Education depends on taxation, and economy on education and taxation, and each affects the other.

Problems of labor, agriculture and business all intermingling. But, too often, these interests compete instead of cooperating. And somehow each fails to realize that subjugation of one cripples the growth of all.

Highways and health, tourism and welfare, all of these relate to the others.

Where does it all come home to roost?

Is it leadership which the state lacks?

And is it possible, perhaps, that Nebraskans have established their government in such a way so as to actually suppress or even prevent leadership?

In the Legislature, 43 state senators hold equal power with no discipline to anyone save those who elect them in 43 different districts, each with its own parochial interests and local desires. Each man is his own king.

In the governor's office, a man is given glory without much power, no legislative control except a veto, ceremony without command. He goes before the people every two years for their approval, and he spends more time campaigning than creating.

If he is a strong man, he may succeed at times in leading.

If he is weak, his influence will be small.

And if he is strong and if he does lead, he will do so despite state constitution and law, not because of it. (Next: Revolution.)

House Subcommittee To Study News Media

Washington (UPI) — The wire services and other news media are scheduled later this year to come under the scrutiny of a House anti-trust subcommittee.

One phase of the inquiry will concern the increasing trend toward consolidation in the newspaper field. Television and radio news coverage also will be examined.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., who will head the subcommittee of the Senate judiciary committee, said he merely wants facts and any type of censorship will be avoided "like the plague."

Wants To Determine

He said the group wants to determine such things as: —Is it a healthy business condition for one firm owning both the morning and afternoon papers in a town. —Does the common ownership of newspapers and television-radio stations result in slanted news? —How do the wire service operate, and what is their news for wide presentation? Celler said the subcommittee also is interested in the suburban press, which has grown rapidly in recent years.

Witnesses Include

Witnesses, he said will include owners of news media, broadcasting officials and representatives of the Justice Department and Federal Trade Commission. He said no one will be subpoenaed, and no witness will be compelled to testify on editorial content against his wishes.

No date has been set for the hearings, but they are not expected to start for at least another two months and probably not until after Congress adjourns.

To lay groundwork for the inquiry, a staff headed by Stuart H. Johnson is studying newspaper content at the Library of Congress.

Johnson said that among the newspaper transactions to be investigated would be the purchase of the New Orleans Times-Picayune and Item by S. I. Newhouse, and Hearst Publishing Co.'s purchase from Scripps-Howard of the San Francisco News-Call Bulletin.

Airport Debt, Projects Could Cost Taxpayers $5 Million

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln taxpayers could pay $5 million or more toward Municipal Airport bonded debt, operations and/or future improvements under a $2.5 million airport revenue bond issue proposed for sale next Thursday.

This possibility, if not probable, exists in the Airport Authority's notice of sale and official statement for the 25-year bond issue.

The authority "conservatively" estimates the tax take from the state-authorized one-mill levy for airport purposes to be "not less than $200,000 annually" during the bond period. The 1961 tax revenue was $197,727.

The $200,000 minimum is virtually guaranteed by proposed bond covenants.

Levy Promised

During the period of outstanding bonds, the authority promises to levy "not less than one mill" against the city's assessed valuation.

The assessed valuation of growing Lincoln has doubled during the past 25 years and could conceivably double during the next 25. Similarly, the authority's tax revenue would slide upwards.

The authority also promises the bondholders to levy "a tax equivalent to what one mill would raise" on the bond resolution date if there's "any change in the method of assessment."

These two bond covenants are supported by an opinion by the Lincoln law firm of Cline, Williams, Wright, Johnson, Oldfather and Thompson.

While these bond covenants are designed to protect the bondholders, they can also work in favor of the taxpayer.

The $2.5 million bond issue on a projected 25-year amortization schedule at 4½% interest would require $2,063,950 in interest, or total debt service of $4,565,950.

Bond bids at less than 4½% average interest would proportionately reduce the estimated debt service.

Revenues Estimated

Over the 25-year period, the authority estimates gross revenues of $8,438,654 (including tax revenue) and operating, maintenance and administrative expense of $2,516,846.

On projected figures, this would result in a cumulative surplus of $1,355,858 over the estimated requirement of $4,565,950 for debt service.

In other words, if the authority's projected estimates are reasonably accurate, the $1.3 million surplus could be used to accelerate debt retirement at considerable savings in interest charges, or used for airport improvements or operations.

Based on past statements by authority members, the use of surplus funds for early debt retirement is indicated.

Authority members have said their aim is to put airport operations on a self-supporting basis.

Also the bond issue provides for early retirement of an $830,000 block of bonds maturing in 1967 without a penalty payment.

Must Levy One Mill

As long as the bonds are outstanding, the authority under the proposed issue must levy not less than one mill.

The cost of the Municipal Airport runway and expansion program is estimated at $4,626,150 to be constructed in two stages as 1962 and 1963 projects.

Additional to the $2.5 million revenue bond issue, the airport program will be financed by an estimated $2,021,775 in federal airport funds and $175,000 in state funds, and current authority investments of $518,701.

The Airport Authority was created in 1959 by the City Council under state enabling legislation. The authority's corporate existence continues until all bonded debt and obligations against the municipal airport are discharged.

When the municipal airport or airports are debt free, operating control and administration reverts to the council.

When I took the mews house in Hasker street, London, I invited a number of friends to drop in when they came to Europe.

"Don't bother to phone from the depot," I said. "Just come right out to the house."

Unfortunately, many of these people could not come. But they sent their friends, which is the next best thing. And now that the tourist season is in full swing, there is scarcely a day we don't get a call.

"Name's Calfeall," he said on the telephone. "Friends of the Snivelys. Old Gus sends his best regards."

"What are you doing up at 5 in the morning?" I asked anxiously. "If it's an emergency, my doctor—"

"Ha, ha," said Calfeall. "Nothing like that. We just landed at the airport. I figured we'd go into the hotel and get a little shut-eye. But I wanted to let you know we were here before you got out of the house. By the way, is there some place we can pick up some good tweeds without getting rooked? My wife —"

We made arrangements to meet for lunch. But when I called the room, the operator said there was a "no calls" notice on the switchboard.

Calfeall telephoned at 4. He sounded brisk and rested.

"Must have overslept," he said. "I can't sleep on a plane. Though I had a check-up before I left and the doc said he wished he had my constitution. What's for tonight?" said Calfeall. "Why don't we run out and see your place—what do you call it? A mews house?"

"Suppose we run over about 7 and then move out to dinner? Got to tell you what old Snively is doing these days. Oh, I'll bring the kids," said Calfeall. "What a bunch! They had the stewardesses out of their minds. You'll love 'em."

Well, there's no news like news from home. I bought a couple of bottles of square face. (There was some talk about they might want soft drinks. Calfeall sounded like a three-martini man to me. But I laid in some dry cider, anyway.)

I put in some Cheshire cheese and warned my daughter not to throw on the accent she reserves for visitors.

"Lay off that 'cor, stone the crows' jazz," I said sternly. "We swept down the scatterer and put some 'His' and 'Her' guest towels in the bathroom."

At 7:30, the ice was melting and the phone rang. "Most marvelous thing happened," said Calfeall. (He didn't sound like he'd been belting cider, either.)

"We ran into the Goodspeeds. They were on the plane with us. Okay with you, we'll bring them out. They don't know old Snively. But they know the firm."

Calfeall and company arrived about 8. He shook my hand and said it was good to see an American face. And any friend of old Snively's was a friend of his.

The Goodspeeds said how was it living in England? Mr. Goodspeed said slyly he bet the tax structure would make me rich.

"Matter of fact, it's worse," I said. "I pay American taxes and it looks like the British are going to hit me—"

"Atta boy," said Goodspeed, digging me in the ribs. "Never plead guilty."

Anyway, it is good to hear from home. Old Snively was in the pink, said Calfeall.

The ladies said the mews house was quaint. But how in the world, my dear, do you get along without a washing machine?

They were anxious to go to the Mirabelle for dinner. Having heard it was one of London's best. It is, too. I hadn't been able to afford it yet and was happy to see it.

Calfeall and Goodspeed let me pick up the nudge.

"Haven't got the hang of the English money," Calfeall explained. "What is it? Pounds?"

They insisted I lunch with the two men the next day. I took them to a small pub. They were delighted with the check. About $4.

"You must be stacking it away," said Calfeall and Goodspeed enviously. "Wait'll I tell old Snively about this."

Woman Is Arrested At Nevada Test Site

... WHILE PICKETING TESTING

Camp Mercury, Nev. (AP)—A woman picketing against nuclear testing was arrested Sunday after she ignored warnings and walked onto the secret Nevada test site. She was sentenced to 30 days in jail for violating a state law against trespassing.

Mrs. Mary Harvey, 32, of Modesto, Calif., was taken into custody after she got about 2 feet beyond the boundary marking the Atomic Energy Commission's site.

District Attorney William Beko of Nye County said he talked to the woman about 30 minutes, trying to discourage her from entering the test site.

"She was aware of the Nevada trespassing law," said Beko, "but she felt so strongly about this she couldn't help herself."

"We suggested she meet with the AEC and other responsible authorities, but she wasn't interested."

"She felt this hadn't done any good in the past, and it wouldn't do any good now."

"I don't see what she gained because she didn't get to talk to anybody but the judge."

The woman was fingerprinted and photographed at a nearby security building, then driven 50 miles to Beaty, Nev., where she pleaded guilty to trespassing before Justice of the Peace Edward J. Henderson. She started serving her term immediately at the county jail in the mining town of Tonopah.

Mrs. Harvey was accompanied by 3 companions, who stopped short of the gate. They called themselves "the committee for non-violent action." They identified themselves as Melvin Harvey, 41, husband of the arrested woman; her nephew, Richard, 18, and Joan Abrams of Oakland, Calif.

After Mrs. Harvey was taken to jail, they left for California.

The group appeared at the test site more than an hour after a larger group of demonstrators picketed without incident. The AEC said it provided drinking water and rest room facilities for the first group, which demonstrated in the morning, then left before noon.

OAS Official To Plead Latin View On Tariff Cuts

Brussels (AP) — The secretary general of the Organization of American States (OAS), Jose A. Mora, flew here Sunday to plead the case of Latin American countries before the European Common Market.

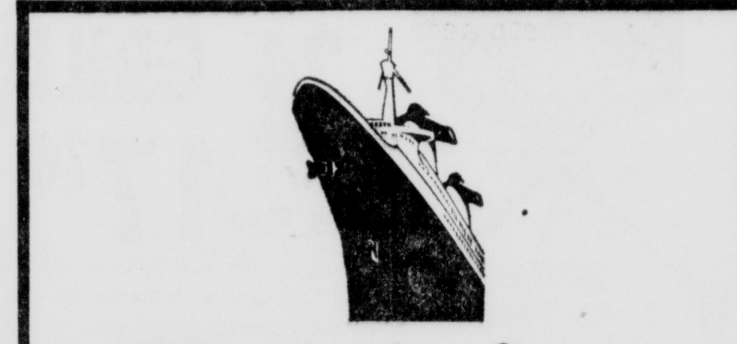

"I am glad about the Common Market's decision to reduce tariffs on cocoa and coffee," he told newsmen.

Mora said he also wants to discuss tariffs on bananas, meat and wool. Latin American countries fear that the trading bloc will cut imports of these products.

Pedestal arrangements of white and yellow chrysanthemums and gladioli formed the background in the First Methodist Church at York on Saturday afternoon, July 14, for the marriage of Miss Patricia Maxine Barrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Barrett of York, to Gary C. Anderson, son of B. R. Anderson of Grand Island. The service was solemnized at 2 o'clock by the Rev. Max O. McCamley, and Mrs. Francis Cummings, organist, played the wedding music. The vocalist was Calvin Cutright.

Wearing sheath frocks in pale yellow fashioned in the daytime length, and carrying cascades of salmon-pink sweetheart roses and ivy were Mrs. Jerold W. Dragoo of Lincoln, as the matron of honor; Mrs. Dean R. Jenkins, Tulsa, Okla., the bridesmaid; Miss Julie Moran, Las Vegas, Nev.

Serving his brother as best man was L. B. Anderson of Grand Island, and seating the guests were Eugene Nicholas, St. Joseph, Mo.; Charles W. Rush and Gary B. Walker, Lincoln.

White peau de soie touched with re-embroidered Alencon lace was chosen by the bride for her wedding gown. Abbreviated sleeves and a shoulder-wide decolletage accented the Empire bodice, and the bell-shaped skirt was caught into controlled fullness at either side and continued into a cottillion train beneath a tailored bustle bow of the silk. A new dawn, a new day, a new week. Judging from some of the notations in our little black book the days ahead hold considerable promise in the way of activity.

We thought that perhaps we had run the gamut of guest news. We are happy that such is not the case—this morning we have new names—new places to mention.

We'll begin with Mr. and Mrs. Perry Branch, Jr., and their two daughters, Sally and Suzanne, who will be arriving from Rochester, N.Y., next Sunday for a visit in Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. Branch and their family will be the house guests of Mrs. Branch's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holtz, and also will visit Mr. Branch's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Perry courtesies for Miss Anne Sowles, whose marriage to Lt. David Calhoun will take place on Sept. 29, was the dessert supper and vice shower for which Miss Elva Baxter was hostess on Friday evening at Hotel Cornhusker. Supper places were arranged for 20.

Club Members Hear Speakers

Mrs. Millard Bennett presided as toastmistress at the recent dinner and program of the Lincoln Toastmistress Club.

Program speakers were Mrs. Charles Chace, whose topic was, "Accentuate the Positive," and Mrs. Lorraine Christensen, who spoke on, "Lucky Me".

Topic mistress was Miss Cora Mae Briggs, and Mrs. Henry Holst served as evaluator. Mrs. Don Kuhle was a guest of the club.

Girl Scouts Are Prepared, Too

If you are wondering how much a 17 year-old girl can cram into one duffel bag, any of the Senior Girl Scouts pictured above will be happy to demonstrate.

Practically experts in the art of packing by now are (from the left) Susan Powell, daughter of Col. and Mrs. E. R. Powell; Jane Vallicott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Vallicott; Judy Cherry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Cherry; Angie Hoffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Hoffman; and Zara P. Pretty, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Loren D. Pretty.

The girls will leave at midnight tonight for the once-in-three-years national Girl Scout Round-Up, to be held July 20 to 29, at Button Bay, Vt., and although camping equipment already has been shipped ahead, the travelers spent the week end cramming almost-forgotten items into the one traveling bag each is allowed.

As if the Round-Up and meeting other Girl Scouts from all over North America were not enough, there will be interesting side trips which will include Port Huron, Mich., Toronto and Montreal, Canada, and Niagara Falls.

Courtesies Honor Phyllis Williamson

One of the August brides-elect is Miss Phyllis Williamson who has chosen Saturday, Aug. 25, for her marriage to Ronald Patrick Scallion of Denver. The ceremony will take place at Christ the King Church in Evergreen, Colo.

This morning Miss Williamson makes announcement of the bridal attendants who include Miss Gayle McPhail, the maid of honor; Miss Dorothy Chapman, the bridesmaid, both of Denver, and Mrs. Bruce Dickson of Colorado Springs, the bridesmatron.

Gerald Scallion of Simsbury, Conn., will serve his brother as best man, and seating the guests will be Ron Polly of Lexington, Ky; George Cairns and Herbert Rumsey, both of Denver.

As you no doubt know Miss Williamson came from Colorado several days ago for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Williamson, and left this week end to return to Denver.

We might say that during her stay in town there was little, if any, rest for the bride-elect. She was kept on the hop, skip and jump with numerous courtesies.

Last Friday morning, for instance, Miss Williamson was complimented by Mrs. George Stafford, Mrs. O. A. Barber and Mrs. L. H. Pickett when they were coffee hostesses at the home of Mrs. Stafford.

On Saturday Miss Stafford was honored when Mrs. L. M. Kalin and her daughter, Mrs. Douglas Klanderud, were luncheon hostesses at the University Club.

Among the many courtesies for Miss Williamson during her Lincoln visit was the coffee and miscellaneous shower for which Mrs. Louis Roper was hostess when she entertained at her home on Friday morning, July 6. On Tuesday evening of last week Mrs. Norman Carlson and her daughter, Mrs. Ron Krafka, paid prenuptial courtesy to the bride-elect when they were dinner and kitchen shower hostesses at the home of Mrs. Carlson. And on that same Tuesday Mrs. Charles Boswell, Mrs. Richard Miller, Mrs. John Carey and Mrs. Jack Zimmer complimented Miss Williamson with a luncheon and linen shower when they entertained at the Lincoln Country Club.

Last Thursday's calendar included a luncheon for which Mrs. Veldon Lewis was hostess at her home in courtesy to Miss Williamson, and an informal party on Thursday evening when Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Richards were host and hostess to members of the family at their home.

WHY GROW OLD?

A Mental Attitude JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

It is impossible to judge a person's age by the number of years he or she has lived. There can be a tremendous difference between two people of the same age. This is true physically, and also mentally and emotionally. It is now an established fact that our mental outlook has a dramatic effect on our health and on prolonging the youthful portion of life.

The following are a few questions which will test your outlook.

Do you like young folks as old? This is fatal to youthfulness! The best thing is to forget age. However, it has been found that those who think of themselves as middle aged rather than elderly are more youthful.

Do you like young folks Association with those who are younger than you are helps keep YOU young. If you are critical of youth, it may indicate that you are inflexible, set in your ways and in your thoughts, that you are in the rut of age.

Do you eagerly look for-

The bidding:
East South West North
Pass 2NT Pass 3NT
Opening lead — two of diamonds.

Here is a hand that contains an exceptionally fine defensive play. The deal occurred in the match between France and Switzerland during the European championships played in Amsterdam in 1955.

Jais, playing South for France, opened the bidding with two notrump and Trezel raised to three. West (Reichenbach) led a diamond.

Declarer played the king from dummy, whereupon East (Jean Besse) played the five!

If Besse had taken the king with the ace, the contract would have been unbeatable. Against a diamond return declarer would win and later take a heart finesse to produce his ninth trick, while against a club return and continuation declarer would duck twice and then take a heart finesse to bring about the same result.

Besse viewed the play of the king from dummy with suspicion. He reasoned that Jais had to have the Q-J-x of diamonds to make this play, because, with any lesser holding, declarer would surely have played low from dummy. The king play was obviously intended to encourage a diamond return in case it lost to the ace.

Declarer led a low heart to the queen at trick two and lost to the king. Unfortunately, West failed to cooperate with his partner's fine play. He led another diamond, thus establishing trick number nine for Jais.

But if West had made the marked switch to the queen of clubs, South would have gone down. East would have signaled for a continuation, and whether Jais took the first, second or third club lead, he would have wound up with only eight tricks. The defense, on this line of play, would have taken three clubs, a heart and a diamond.

The French team went on to capture the European championship that year, winning every match they played except the one against Switzerland. If they had encountered more plays like the one Besse made in this deal, it is doubtful that they would have finished on top.

Dear Abby

Why Not Grow Up?

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a mother who won't let her daughter lie out in the back yard to sun herself? I don't mean in a brief bathing suit or anything like that. I mean in a sun suit. She says, "People might think it's me!" Do you think that would be so terrible?

WANTS TO KNOW

DEAR WANTS: If a daughter can be mistaken for her own mother in a sun suit, I think the mother should join her.

DEAR ABBY: We are middle-class people who own a nice little bungalow in a neighborhood where there are many children. We fixed up our back yard with swings, slides, etc., for our grandchildren to enjoy while visiting us on weekends. During the week the neighborhood youngsters would ring our bell and ask if they could play in our back yard. How could we refuse?

Last week a neighbor boy fell off our swing and broke two teeth (not baby teeth). We received a letter from his father's attorney advising us that we were being sued for the dental bill. Our own attorney said it was our yard and we were liable. Please print this as a warning to other big-hearted uninformed people who can ill-afford such generosity.

STUCK

DEAR ABBY: My husband's mother is coming to visit us for a month. She never cared for me and the feeling is mutual. I am considering taking a job while she is here. That way she can have the run of the house, boss the children and just take over. (She will anyway.) I will let her be the "Lady of the House" and I won't have to be around her all day. Do you see anything wrong with that? When I suggested it to my husband he said I should forget it. I'd like your opinion.

DAUGHTER-IN-LAW
DEAR D-I-L: I agree with your husband. His mother

Can Women Fill Orbital Boots

... ASTRONAUTS TO ANSWER

Washington (UPI) — Congressional investigators this week will ask the men who wear them whether women can fill the flight boots of an astronaut.

A special House space subcommittee under Rep. Victor L. Anfuso, D-N.Y., announced Sunday it will call on this country's only two orbital fliers John H. Glenn and M. Scott Carpenter for testimony on the question of whether outer space should remain a man's world.

Anfuso also listed as witnesses in the hearings starting Tuesday, Jerrie Cobb, Jacqueline Cochran and Mrs. Philip Hart, wife of the Michigan Democratic Senator. All 3 women are experienced pilots.

Plans To Call
Anfuso also plans to call Dr. Robert C. Seamans Jr., associate administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), and Brig. Gen. Charles H. Roadman, NASA's director of aerospace medicine.

"We are determined to find out just what are the basic indispensable qualifications for astronauts for space flight in these early days of our national space program," Anfuso said in a statement.

"I think the questions to be answered include whether women, from a technical and practical standpoint, can participate as astronauts; whether our criteria for astronaut qualifications are too high; and whether it is feasible to select and train people other than engineering test pilots to perform as crew members of our upcoming space craft."

Air Branches
Glenn, Carpenter and the other 5 original Mercury astronauts are all test pilots with engineering training, drawn from the air branches of the armed forces.

Anfuso observed that there could be a propaganda "plus" in possible selection of women for space missions.

"The importance of this investigation should not be underestimated," he said. "We must consider the far reaching effects from a national prestige standpoint of sending into space the first woman astronaut."

"It is my opinion that the women of our nation, in contrast to the women of the Soviet Union, have not been utilized to any great degree as contributing members of scientific teams now executing NASA's programs."

Anfuso added that use of women as astronauts might perhaps "excite the imagination and desires of other young women of our nation to enter into rewarding careers in science and technology."

KNOCKED THROUGH FENCE

Considerable damage resulted to one moving car, two parked cars, a fence, and a tree in this accident on Whittier between Holdrege and Potter early Sunday afternoon. J. D. Bowen, 69, of 1600 Whittier, told police that as he was backing out of his driveway, his foot slipped off the brake and hit the accelerator. He then blacked out. The car continued across the street, striking the vehicle in the background, then came back to the west side of Whittier, knocking the car in the foreground over a picket fence. The Bowen car came to rest when it backed into a tree on the west side of the street. Bowen was not injured. (Star Photo)

CED Says 2 Million Farmers Should Quit

Washington (UPI) — About 2 million farmers should go into some other line of work and farm price levels should be cut sharply, the Committee for Economic Development recommended Sunday.

It said this double-barrel program would help the government cut in half its spending for agriculture without hardship to farmers.

The recommended exodus of farmers would remove about one in every 3 workers in the present farm labor force.

The CED said this "massive adjustment" of human resources, if pushed vigorously over a period of years, would help reduce government farm outlays by $3 billion a year — about half the current yearly spending.

Businessmen, Educators
The CED identifies itself as a non-profit, non-partisan group of 200 leading businessmen and educators. Its work is supported by contributions from business and industry.

After months of discussions, meetings and exchanges of memoranda, the CED's research and policy committee issued a statement called "an adaptive program for agriculture."

In addition to a big reduction in farm manpower, the CED called for:

—Ending all government controls on agriculture within 5 years.
—Immediate reduction of price supports on wheat, cotton, rice, and feed grains "so that farmers will not be misled by high price supports into retaining excessive resources in agriculture."

—"Temporary income protection" for farmers to prevent the impact of price cuts from "bearing excessively on the farm community."

—A 5-year soil bank to hold down output of feed grains.
—A cropland adjustment program.

Sums Up Problem
Summing up the farm problem, the CED statement said that in recent years "the total amount of resources — land, labor, and capital combined — that are necessary for agricultural production has fallen rapidly."

Miss Universe Wants To Return To Buenos Aires

... EXPRESSES DESIRE TO SEE BOY FRIEND

Miami Beach, Fla. (UPI) — Miss Universe of 1962 wrinkled her pretty nose, flashed her dark eyes and served notice Sunday that even a reigning beauty queen has a right to a private life.

Pushing aside a chicken dinner to nibble on some potato chips, Norma Nolan of Argentina said she would like to return to her home in Buenos Aires as soon as possible.

One reason, she said, was to see her boy friend but she quickly added: "This is my private life and I do not wish to discuss it."

Miss Universe spent the morning roaming Miami Beach and taking color pictures of the resort area. She said she was disappointed she had not yet received an answer to a cable she sent her mother in Buenos Aires Saturday night after she won the title.

Another Reason

Miss Nolan said she did not think her mother would join her in the United States and that this was another reason she wanted to visit home. "She is a very quiet lady and not fond of trips," she said. The 24-year-old beauty said she loved the United States and has always dreamed of a trip here. She said American hospitality pleased her but that she was too tired to notice everything that took place around her.

"I am very happy, but, oh, so tired," she said.

"I want to take this opportunity to send my love to my fellow countrymen and tell them how happy I am to conquer this great honor for my country," she said.

Television Model

Miss Nolan is a television model in Buenos Aires.

She said she knew of no immediate plans to launch her reign, but she began the afternoon by attending a reception given by the Arkansas Poultry Federation.

Speaking of her pageant victory Saturday night, she said, "I could not have been more surprised when they called out my name. I thought I heard wrong and it took me some time to realize it was true." Her face brightened when Miss Japan walked over and congratulated her. Although neither girl could understand what the other was saying, the language barrier melted with a warm hand clasp.

She said the nervous excitement that caused her to chew through the finger ties of her long white gloves Saturday night had subsided somewhat, but that it would probably return after she got some rest.

SLUMPING INDIANS LOSE 2

Gentile Blasts HR's For Birds

... DECIDES BOTH GAMES

Cleveland, (P) — Jim Gentile slammed a pair of homers, one in each game, to power the Baltimore Orioles to a 6-4 and 6-5 doubleheader sweep over the slumping Cleveland Indians Sunday.

Gentile, who now has 24 homers, hit his first game homer in the 6th inning to snap a 4-4 tie. It was the Orioles 4th roundtripper off loser Jim (Mudcat) Grant (4-4) and came right after Jackie Brandt had blasted a homer to tie the score.

Chuck Estrada (5-10) limited the Indians to 6 hits in the opener, including a two-run homer by Willie Kirkland. Ron Hansen and Jerry Adair also homered for the Orioles.

The nightcap was tied 5-5 in the 9th when Gentile picked on a pitch by Barry Latman leading off the inning and drove it deep to right center to decide the contest. It was the third straight game in which Gentile homers had swung the tide. The big first baseman cracked a 14th inning homer Saturday to beat the Indians.

Cleveland now has lost 4 in a row to the Orioles and 6 of their last 7 games.

The Orioles scored 3 runs in the 5th inning of the second game. A walk, a single by Russ Snyder and pitcher Jack Fisher's squeeze bunt produced the first run. Then Adair singled and Whitey Herzog lined a two-run double to left-center.

But the Indians bounced back with 4 runs in the 5th frame. A walk and singles by Ty Cline and Doc Edwards scored one run. Chuck Essegian then drilled his 15th homer to left, scoring 3 runs to give Cleveland a 4-3 edge.

Baltimore tied the score in the 6th with a trio of two-out singles — by Brooks Robinson, Snyder and Hansen. The Orioles took a 5-4 edge in the 8th on 3 walks and Herzog's single off pitcher Latman's shin.

Another Record For Stan Musial

Pittsburgh (P) — Stan Musial set another record Sunday when he came up to his 10,428th time at bat in the 6th inning of the second game of a doubleheader between the St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates. To mark the occasion appropriately, Musial doubled.

Musial, 41, who beat Honus Wagner's National League hit record earlier in the year, erased another of Wagner's League marks. Wagner held the old at bat record of 10,427.

Sidney Edges Ogallala, 2-1

Sidney (P) — Three singles and a sacrifice fly in the 8th inning gave Sidney a 2-1 Nebraska Independent League victory over Ogallala Sunday night.

Ogallala 010 000 000—1 5 0
Sidney 000 000 02—2 5 1
Keith Krommenhoek and Jim Francy; Bud Murray and Don Heidt.

Dick Gibson and Sherrill Geistlinger beat Jack Ringwalt and Evelyn Buras 10-3 and 10-6 in the men's doubles finals. Glaring sun during the finals made the hats practical if not necessary.

Six Homers Spark Two Yankee Wins

... MARIS GETS TWO

Kansas City, (P) — Six home runs, two of them by Roger Maris, accounted for 10 runs Sunday as the New York Yankees swept a doubleheader from the Athletics, 8-6 and 11-3 before a record Kansas City crowd of 34,865.

The Yankees had to go 10 innings before they won the opener on a homer by Yogi Berra with Mickey Mantle aboard. The A's submitted meekly in the nightcap as the Yankees hammered 15 hits and received a route-going performance from Roland Sheldon who squared his record at 5-5.

The Athletics held a 5-0 lead after 6 innings of the opener with Diego Segui allowing only 2 hits up to that time. Maris homered with the bases empty in the 7th and then the Yankees jolted Segui for 5 runs in the 8th to take a 6-5 lead.

Bobby Richardson singled in the first run. Maris hit a 3-run homer and John Blanchard drove in the final run with a single.

Gino Cimoli homered for the Athletics in the 8th to tie the score and the deadlock held until Jerry Walker walked Mantle with one out in the 10th and Berra followed with his 7th homer of the season.

The two homers by Maris raised his total to 23.

Elston Howard lashed two homers for the Yankees in the nightcap and Bill Skowron hit one. Skowron's came in the 4th inning with Hector Lopez aboard as the Yankees scored 3 times to take a 4-3 lead.

Howard connected with Mantle on base in the 5th and drove in the Yanks' 7th run with a sacrifice fly in the 7th. He homered again to touch off a 4-run blast in the 9th.

Three singles followed Howard's homer and then Sheldon walked to force in a run. Phil Linz singled in the final two runs.

The crowd of 34,865 topped the former record of 34,065 which was set for a Yankee appearance on August 27, 1961.

Reds Spoil Rookie's Debut With 3-2 Win

... BRAVES WIN 1ST, 5-0

Milwaukee, (P) — The Cincinnati Reds rallied for two runs in the 9th inning Sunday to spoil southpaw Denny Lemaster's major league debut and beat the Milwaukee Braves, 3-2, for an even break in a double header. Lew Burdette shut out the Reds on 5 hits as the Braves won the first game, 5-0.

Lemaster, called up from Louisville only 3 days ago, had a brilliant 4th hitting going into the 9th. A 5th inning home run had given the Reds their only run. But Vada Pinson tied the score with a homer, then Lee Maye dropped Wally Post's fly and the Reds capitalized on the break to win the game. Post went to second on a wild pitch and scored the clincher on Hank Foiles' single.

The Braves got their two runs off starter Johnny Klippstein in the second on Maye's home run, Frank Bolling's double and Del Crandall's single. They appeared to have another in the 6th when left fielder Post made a futile leap for Bolling's long drive. But Bolling was called out for interference by a fan in the bleachers.

Jim Brosnan worked the last two innings and received credit for his 3rd victory against one defeat.

Burdette (8-5) did not allow a Red to pass second base in the first game as he pitched the 29th shutout of his career. His mates, meanwhile, scored 3 runs off Jim Maloney in the first 3 innings and one each off relievers Ted Wills and Dave Sisler.

Eddie Mathews produced what proved to be the winning run with a home run in the first. It was his 388th of his career and gave him undisputed possession of 8th place on the all-time list, breaking a tie with Duke Snider of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Minneapolis St. Paul (P) — Harmon Killebrew smashed a pair of doubles and drove in 4 runs Sunday to back Frank Sullivan's brilliant relief pitching and give the Minnesota Twins a 5-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the first game of a double header.

Killebrew's second two-bagger came in the 6th inning with two outs and sent home 3 runs to overcome a 3-2 Boston lead. He also drove in the second run in the 5th inning.

The victory went to Lee Stang, the third Minnesota pitcher who retired for a pinch hitter in the 6th. Sullivan, making his first appearance in a Minnesota uniform after many successful seasons with Boston, protected the lead by retiring 9 men in a row over the last 3 innings.

The Red Sox took an early 3-0 lead over the Twins when Pagliaroni banged a 3-run home run in the second inning.

Rain caused postponement of the second game.

NY Titans In Grid Training
East Stroudsburg, N.J. (P) — The battle to beat out the veterans for 33 ultimate jobs with the New York Titans of the American Football League began for keeps Sunday for 29 rookies with the first scrimmage of the young training season.

"I know now after 6 solid workouts," said head coach Bulldog Turner, "what they can do under practice conditions of running through plays and formations. Now we'll find out if they can take it and give it. That's what is known as separating the men from the boys."

Johnson Gets Hawaii Award
Honolulu (P) — Robyn Johnson of Arlington, Va., received the Australian Hicks-Ive award and the John Henricks plaque as the most outstanding swimmer in the 3-day Keo Nakama swim meet that wound up Saturday night.

Miss Johnson established 3 Hawaiian records in the meet, 20:15.3 in the 1,500 meter freestyle, 5:43.2 in the 400 meter individual medley and 4:59.2 in trials of the 400 meter freestyle. She turned in 1:03.5 in the 100 freestyle but missed Dawn Fraser's Hawaiian record of 1:02.0.

Swims Dardanelles
Cankkale, Turkey, (P) — Mary Margaret Revell, 24-year-old long distance swimmer from Detroit, swam the Dardanelles and back Sunday in a total time of 2:46.3.

Shrine Profiles

Brent Krantz, Blair Big Brent Krantz, of the North Shrine team, was one of two Class B players to make the Sunday Journal and Star all-state team last fall.

The 220-pound Blair graduate was the center of the dream team. Cozad's Kelly Petersen was the other selection from Class B.

Krantz, one of the bigger Shrine players, is the youngest. He'll be 18 on Dec. 7.

His top sports thrill was breaking Schuyler's 29-game winning streak last fall.

He was a Boys State participant and on Blair's honor roll his senior year. The big boy also lettered in basketball, track, and golf.

He is working as an orderly in Omaha's Methodist Hospital this summer and will attend Nebraska Wesleyan this fall.

He is 6-2 and will wear number 87 for the North.

Crampton Shatters Par In Motor City

Detroit (P) — Bruce Crampton, compensating for scattered drives with fantastic shots toward the green, smothered par again Sunday and captured the $35,000 Motor City Open with a 17-under-par total of 267.

The 26-year-old Australian, boosted along when he holed a 75-foot shot out of a trap, broke a 3-way third-round tie by firing a 5-under-par 33-33—66 for the $5,300 first prize.

Crampton, after shooting rounds of 66-65—70, was tied with Don Massengale and Dave Ragan, entering the final round. Massengale shot a 69 Sunday and tied for second place with Dave Hill at 270.

Ragan, with a 70 Sunday, finished 4th with 271.

The victory was only the second in 6 years on the PGA circuit for the curly-haired iron man. Crampton is the only player to compete all 28 weeks on this year's tour — and the victory enabled him to keep his iron man string alive. He needed the Motor City triumph to qualify for this week's big PGA tournament.

But Crampton had to withstand a tremendous final round charge by Hill, who shattered the par 36-35—71 Knollwood Course record with a 64.

Crampton had 5 birdies Sunday — and was troubled by only one bogey during the entire 72 holes.

His drives were often off the fairway — but he recovered with remarkable finesse. On the par 3 8th hole, he dropped his tee shot into a trap. But Crampton exploded out, bouncing the ball once before it rolled and curled into the cup 75 feet away for a birdie.

"That's got to be the climax of the whole tournament," Crampton said. "I hit it exactly as I planned."

Another brilliant recovery led to a birdie on the par 4 No. 11 hole. His drive was in the rough and Crampton had to shoot his second shot from beneath a tree limb. He placed his shot 9 inches from the pin and putted it in for his birdie.

Putts ranging from 10 to 14 feet helped his other birdies.

"This is one of those days which had to be my day," Crampton said. "I had lots of bad tee shots, but after them everything I did was right and I could do nothing wrong."

"I'm glad those players were out of the country this week."

Crampton was referring to Arnold Palmer and the other Americans playing in the British Open.

Crampton's only other victory was in last year's Milwaukee Open. But he has won money in 13 of his last 14 tournaments, starting with the 1962 Masters.

Hill, finishing several strokes ahead of Crampton, blistered Knollwood with 9s of 31-33. He had 8 birdies and slipped to a bogey only once. Massengale started fast, getting 3 birdies on the first 7 holes. But he sent his drive behind some trees and then placed his second shot in a trap for a bogey on No. 9, slipping out of contention.

Ragan had 9s of 35-35, but missed tying for the $2,800 runnerup money when he missed a short putt on 18.

Sweden Drops South Africans
Baastad, Sweden, (P) — Sweden went into its 3rd consecutive Davis Cup European zone final against Italy Sunday by defeating South Africa 4-1.

Sunday's last singles matches saw Sweden's top ranked Jan-Eric Lundqvist down young Cliff Drysdale 6-4, 6-4, 6-2, and Ulf Schmidt of Sweden conquer the veteran Abe Segal 11-9, 6-4, 6-4.

Sweden and Italy will meet here late this month. Italy defeated Sweden in last year's zone finals, winning 4 of the 5 matches.

Soccer Convention
Detroit, (P) — Delegates to the U.S. Soccer Football Association convention here Sunday re-elected all Association officers and decided to hold next year's convention in New York.

Wright Is Winner In Milwaukee

Milwaukee (P) — Blonde Mickey Wright, the golden gal of the pro golf trail, struggled through intermittent rain and a whipping wind and won the $10,000 Milwaukee Women's Open Sunday, with a 72-hole total of 9-over-par 289.

The 27-year-old Miss Wright covered the final round in 36-41—77, 7 over par to capture top money of $1,350 by 7 strokes.

Veteran Patty Berg and Jo Ann Prentice tied for second with 296 totals, one stroke ahead of Mary Lena Faulk.

The top money winner on the ladies' PGA tour, Miss Wright boosted her 1962 earnings to $10,357 by posting her third tournament victory in 14 events. She won $22,236 last year.

The weather played havoc on the final day of the tournament at the 6,135 yard Tuckaway Country Club course, but Miss Wright disregarded the elements and took a big lead with her 36 on the front 9. Then she cautiously protected the advantage coming back.

Celebrezze Faces Task Of New Job

Washington (AP) — Anthony J. Celebrezze Jr., the mayor of Cleveland, faced the challenge Sunday of a new job — that of Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare in the cabinet of President Kennedy.

Celebrezze, whose surprise appointment was announced Saturday, was chosen by the President to succeed Abraham A. Ribicoff. Ribicoff, first person named by Kennedy to his cabinet and the first to resign, won nomination for U.S. Senator from Connecticut at the state Democratic convention in Hartford Saturday.

The Cleveland mayor was on a fishing trip to Canada when Kennedy reached him by telephone and told him he wanted him for the cabinet post.

"It came as a great surprise to me," Celebrezze said later.

Surprise To All

His selection was a surprise to most everyone else too, because Celebrezze's name had not been mentioned in the speculation as to who might succeed Ribicoff. He had been expected for some time to submit his resignation so he could seek election as Democratic senator.

A key factor in the choice of Celebrezze, associates of the President said, was the mayor's reputation as a good administrator.

Now serving a fifth term as Cleveland's top executive, Celebrezze with President Kennedy and Ribicoff.

Celebrezze's formal nomination for the post may be sent to the Senate Monday.

37 Land Grant College Chiefs At Conference

Thirty-seven deans and directors of land grant colleges from 27 states registered Sunday night to begin a 4-day conference at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

The conference will give the educators an opportunity to work together on problems of mutual interest, according to Franklin Eldridge, director of resident instruction at the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture.

Conference participants represent about 30 schools across the United States. Five members of the Big 8 Conference — NU, Iowa State, Oklahoma State, University of Missouri and University of Kansas — have delegates attending.

South Dakota State University, University of Wyoming, and State University of Iowa are also represented.

Conference speakers include Dr. D. W. Colvard, president, Mississippi State University; Dr. George White, director of general education, Oklahoma State; Dr. Joseph Sosnick, NU controller; and Dr. H. T. Morse, dean of the general college, University of Minnesota.

POPULATION 'EXPLOSION' HITS JAIL

Lincoln's city jail had a minor population explosion over the weekend — its number of temporary inhabitants doubled in 24 hours.

At noon Saturday, jail population numbered 37. By Sunday noon, 73 more persons had been arrested, bringing the total to 74. Jail capacity is 62.

Of the new arrests, 21 were for intoxication; 7 were held on open charges concerning minor theft, fighting, liquor, and other complaints; 5 were held for investigation, and 4 were for traffic violations.

Lt. Milburn Green said weekend arrests have been increasing since January to the point where Saturday and Sunday's jail increase could be called a "normal" weekend.

"The usual slackening of employment in late July and August is liable to raise the number of weekend arrests ever more," Green said.

Bridge Inauguration

Panama (AP) — A $20 million bridge spanning the Panama Canal at its Pacific entrance is scheduled to be inaugurated in October. The 5,425-foot structure, financed by the United States, will provide permanent access between the Texas financier was appointed to the National Cotton Advisory Committee, Curtis said.

Senator Curtis Says That Estes Got 'Privileges'

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., said Sunday that even the lowest-paid of the Agriculture Department should have "recognized the illegality" of Billie Sol Estes cotton manipulations.

Estes got privileges the "runt" and file farmer could never have gotten, Curtis said in a radio interview.

The blame for the scandal, Curtis said, could not be laid at the door of a badly organized Department of Agriculture.

Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman's "team" knew that Estes had obtained cotton allotments illegally when the Texas financier was appointed to the National Cotton Advisory Committee, Curtis said.

DID YOU KNOW THIS? IT'S A FACT:

The first Negro land-grant college was Alcorn University, established by Mississippi in 1871.

Although alcoholism cannot be inherited, the Florida Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program says the presence of an alcoholic parent in a child's environment may sometimes produce emotional conflicts in the child which can cause him to be susceptible to alcoholism later in life.

The shark is equipped with a powerful jaw and mouth, national income is derived studded with rows of sharp, from agriculture.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

One letter simply stands for another, in this example, A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a number puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. The number of letters is 8 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
